Foreword

'Enjoy the power and beauty of your youth; oh never mind; you will not understand the power and beauty of your youth until they have faded.

But trust me, in 20 years you'll look back at photos of yourself and recall in a way you can't grasp now how much possibility lay before you and how fabulous you really looked...'

Original – Mary Schmich – Chicago Tribune 1997 – Baz Luhrmann – 1998 'Sunscreen'

Dear Alumni – thank you!

I thought I would start this foreword with a small section of a certain tabloid passage, which later became a song that a few of you may remember. It is extremely poignant to me as a teacher of Physical Education and maybe it is one of the core reasons that I love the job that I do. As the years have tumbled by, I have been witness to so many amazing moments that capture so many individual triumphs. The students in front of me change, but the desire of youth to challenge and emulate those who have gone before them is and has been incredibly inspiring. I feel a definite privilege to have been involved, even when it has mainly been as just a spectator.

At this time of year, we have just finished our first whole school Inter-house Competition, the Kowloon Tsai Swimming Gala. It has grown as a competition in so many different ways. But, at its core, it still retains the drive of our student body to challenge itself and set new swimming records. This year, five individual records were set and two team relays broken. Without maybe fully appreciating the legacy that they leave, these individuals have ignited within the next cohort of students the 'KGV' spirit. I hope you as Alumni can look back and with great fondness and enjoy the moments that in your time were so special. Coe back in, if you get the chance, a few old relics are still around. It would be a chance to say – Thank you.

Best wishes

Executive Principal's Message

Dear KGV Alumni,

I have thoroughly enjoyed reading the range of interesting stories emerging from KGV Alumni and highlighted in this edition. Congratulations to Yaz and the Development Team on putting together such an impressive magazine.

This term is also filled with events to look forward to. I always enjoy umpiring the annual cricket match between the school and Alumni at KCC and they are always excellent opportunities for students to test themselves against the wise old heads of the Alumni team.

I am particularly looking forward to the School Disco on November 18th. I have seen so many of you get quite emotional when you talk about the discos of yesteryear and our aim is to recreate the same atmosphere. We want a packed hall and I know that there will be plenty of excellent music, food and drink. I look forward to seeing you there and perhaps sharing the odd dance !

Best wishes

Head of KGV's Message

Dear Alumni,

We are coming towards the end of another full and exciting year at KGV. I would like to take this opportunity to share a few highlights:

- The London alumni reunion in January where I met over 70 alumni and have had further contact with some since the event.
- The KGV Story – meeting many alumni at KGV and finding out more about learning when they were KGV students.
- The focus on the visible identity of the school including projects to promote that KGV celebrates diversity as international school, has a rich heritage, is an IB World School and a Coaching School. The school song will soon be visible around the school!
- The completion of the heritage trail around the school – come and have a tour and follow the trail and see how much you know about KGV School.
- The iconic clock tower repairs. Many thanks to the generous donation from KGV alumni Ian and Hugh Dow for making this happen.

I hope to meet many more alumni next year and if you haven't visited the school in a while, come and see what has changed and how you can reconnect with the school.

Best wishes

ESF Marketing Competition

Teams of students in Year 12 studying Business and Economics competed against all ESF schools – 84 competitors altogether. The teams were challenged by Uber to plan and execute a campaign to increase the number of female drivers in their cars across Hong Kong.

The day was sponsored by Uber who we cannot thank enough for their generosity in the execution of the competition and the prizes for the winning team, a KGV thank you!

APR

Interschools Equestrian Finals

On 16th April KGV had 2 Equestrian teams competing in the HKEF Interschools Equestrian Finals at Lo Wu. Around 40 schools initially entered this competition saw the best 4 teams in both lower and higher division compete for the title of Champion Team for 2016. KGV had a team qualify for the first time in the lower division and ended up in 2nd place behind the very strong RCHK. Aiden rode well in the dressage gaining a 3rd place ribbon. Our higher division team rode exceptionally well to win the competition beating SIS, GSIS and HKIS. As winners of this competition this KGV team win a week of training at the famous Ingestre Stables in Staffordshire in the UK.

Hair Donation Drive

On 30th April volunteers, including 1 parent, 1 alumni, 2 teachers, 25 young ladies plus 1 young man, kindly donated their locks of hair to support The Little Princess Trust, a UK based charity that makes wigs for children with hair loss due to cancer treatments. (If you wish to check out the videos, please visit <https://www.facebook.com/KGVCSG>).

The two main reasons behind this initiative are to raise awareness towards the amazing work that the charities do to serve the cancer patients and to collect funds to support them. Through the collective efforts from the KGV community, CSC successfully collected a total of $12,000 to donate the money raised to support two charities: The Little Princess Trust and The Hong Kong Anti-Cancer Society.

Fundraising Initiative for Japan & Ecuador

After the devastating events that took place in Japan and Ecuador, a group of King George V students decided to raise money to support the Red Cross in their emergency relief. In two weeks, the students managed to organise a cohesive range of interactive fundraising activities. This included making and selling green ribbons, as green is the colour for natural disaster awareness, sharing a range of informative presentations, and organising a flag painting event. The whole school got involved, and students showed their support by buying ribbons and adding their handprints to the two flags. In total, a sum of $5,707.50 HKD was raised within only a week of fundraising.

ESF Chef of the Year

The final of the ESF Chef of the Year competition was hosted at Sha Tin College, and the KGV team had to compete with finalists from Sha Tin, South Island, West Island, Discovery College and Island school. Students had to create dishes based on the theme of and inspired by 'Street Food' and once again, the quality of the dishes was overwhelming. Professional chefs from Hong Kong, as well as Belinda Greer, CEO of ESF, judged the dishes and commented on the high quality of taste and presentation shown by all competitors. KGV team came 2nd place, with Danielle and Nishani claiming 'best main dish in the competition'. Congratulations on their achievement!

KLC Special Olympics

The 2016 KLC Special Olympics was held on the 6th of May on the KGV sports grounds from 12.30pm to 2.15pm. This event was designed exclusively by the Year 13 BTEC Sport students of KGV as part of their unit: Organising Sports Event with the aim of including all students with special needs from Jockey Club Sarah Roe School (JCSRS), KGV's Learning Support Centre (LSC) and Kowloon Junior School's student helpers as well as house captains, competing in an afternoon of fun and meaningful physical education activities, demonstrating their passion for sport.

KGV U12 Boys Rugby

ESF U12 boys took the shield at the HKFC soccer sevens in May. 8 KGV boys were in the team. They played 7 games against HK U12 teams and only conceded 2 goals in the whole tournament.

KGV Boys include: Lucas del Bianco, Riki Bayanin, Emilian Pitts, Oliver Stowe, Samuel Wixon, Rio Wey, Roman Davies, Braydon Lisboa.

JUNE

Year 9 Experience Workshop

On 2nd June, students worked with two engineers, Dr Richard Colwill from BMT Asia Pacific and KGV alumna Amie Shuttleworth from Cundall. The duo explained the core skills needed to work effectively as a group. With a sense of cool humour, star of the show, Richard, also gave examples of projects they had both worked on. He expounded on working with limits or "constraints" but also making the best of available resources and creating a fruitful masterpiece.

Once the elucidation was complete, students were given the task to create a weather-proof cover for the field basketball courts with given materials only (a scornful few materials; sticks, tape, etc) over the course of three hours to make a three-dimensional model with our cover design for the basketball courts on a thick Styrofoam sheet. For the last one hour, after returning to the hall, students shared our project work with Dr Colwill and the teachers and they evaluated it with added comments (both positive and negative!)."

Born and raised in Hong Kong, the swimmer won a bronze medal for New Zealand at the 1988 Seoul Olympics – eight years before Lee Lai-shan’s gold in windsurfing. It had not been long since his father – Cathay Pacific pilot Peter Mosse – had passed away.

Mosse was grieving, he had no coach and he was alone. With the 1988 Seoul Olympics around the corner, it was hardly the best physical and mental preparation for a young man who had waited almost two decades for his moment, ever since he first splashed into the pool of the United Services Recreation Club in Kowloon.

In times of hardship, though, family love can lift you from the abyss, no matter how deep. It was a love he could feel emanating from thousands of miles away in New Zealand and it came with a message: His father would not have wanted him to quit. Weeks later, Mosse climbed out of the Olympic indoor pool in Seoul after the men’s 200 metres butterfly final. He found his mother, Joy, and laid his head on her shoulder. He was physically, mentally and emotionally exhausted. And he had just won the bronze medal.

His father would have been proud. New Zealanders were proud and Hong Kong was proud. He was Hong Kong’s “first” Olympic medallist. He may have been representing New Zealand but his story started here and Hong Kong swimming is claiming him.

While Mosse is a proud Kiwi, he owes much to his upbringing in Hong Kong, where he attended Kowloon Junior Primary School and then spent a few years at King George V School.

“It was not the colour [of the medal] I wanted,” said Mosse. “I was ranked in the top three in the world and I had every belief that I would be able to win. Then my father became sick and I left training in Canada, went down to New Zealand and spent a week there between the hospital, home and the pool. I made the decision to return to my training for the Olympics in Canada and one week later, my dad died. It broke my confidence and preparation.”

At the time, Mosse was training with a Canadian Olympic coach and travelled with the Canada squad to Salt Lake City in Utah. However, once there, the coach was told that Mosse was unable to train with him because he was a competitor to one of the Canadian butterfly swimmers.

“I could not stay in their camp,” he said. “I had to stay on my own in a dormitory usually used by ski instructors in the winter, and on my way down the mountain to the pool I would receive pieces of paper with the workout written on it.”

To make matters worse, once Mosse reached Seoul, he had a parting with the coach, who he said appeared to be under huge stress because his swimmers were failing to perform. “So, I had no coach and no dad,” said Mosse, who was the only swimmer in that squad to win a medal.

During the race Mosse, who had reached two finals at the Los Angeles Olympics four years earlier, appeared set for the silver medal behind peerless German Michael Gross, but was caught in the last few metres by Denmark’s Benny Nielsen.

Still, it was an amazing performance given his circumstances – something he didn’t realise until he retired two years later after winning his second 200m butterfly gold at the Commonwealth Games in his beloved Auckland.

“I used the challenges in Seoul as reasons to succeed and not excuses to fail,” he said. “So the medal now feels like a real blessing given the pressure I was under. It did represent a career’s worth of effort.”

Mosse, now 51, was the second New Zealander to win a medal at the Seoul Olympics, just two days after Paul Kingsman took bronze in the men’s 200m backstroke. Before that, the country had gone 36 years without a pool medal since Jean Stewart won bronze in the women’s 100m backstroke in Helsinki 1952.

Mosse says that he can now look back at his swimming career with pride and happiness, having come to terms with what he had achieved. “Yes, I’m at peace with myself,” he said. “As I get older, I can see what it means when someone says that was a great Olympic medal.

“People are now fascinated with it and you can see that it means something.”

Mosse also maintains fond memories of the city he was born and raised in and, though a Kiwi through and through, he has no issue with Hong Kong claiming a piece of him.

“I have great memories of Hong Kong,” said Mosse, whose primary school teacher was Monica Reeve, the mother of former England and Hong Kong cricketer Dermot Reeve.

Bruce Gordon Class of 1949

Bruce Gordon, the former KGV student who was an eyewitness to the attack on Pearl Harbor, shared his story with writer and KGV teacher Paul Letters on how he have thwarted a Soviet strike on China. Please visit this link <http://goo.gl/J1K8m7> or scan the below code to read more.

Sandy E. Toochin Class of 1957

I attended KGV during 1956/1957 (1st Form, I believe it was called then)...time indeed flies by..

As a real "longshot", I wonder, please, if you have any contact information for Ramesh Shamdasani and Jon Tangeras--two friends of mine at the time.

I really appreciate if you could help me locate these friends please. Thank you...and perhaps one day I might visit again.

In Memory of Peter Strange Class of 1958

Joy Hall Tipping nee Ford

Class of 1951

When asked about her relationship with her friends from KGV, Joy says "it is so interesting, that though we are all in either our 70s or 80s, it is as if it were yesterday that we were all together in Hong Kong, and are in touch very frequently, sharing news and photographs. We know of each other's families, children and grandchildren and what is going on in their lives!! KGV was a very special school, and still is, obviously, from looking round the people who went to the London reunion and seeing the delight when they met up their school "mates" again.

Christine O'Donnell Class of 1962

My name is Christine O'Donnell. Maiden name Willis. My father was in the R.A.F. and we lived on Prince Edward Road. Between 1961 and 1962. I was at King George v School during that time. I am going to be on a short visit to Kowloon from Saturday 9th July and leaving Monday about one o'clock. 11th July. My friend and I will be staying at the Royal Plaza Hotel Prince Edward Road. It would be wonderful if I could come and visit the school. We have only booked a half day tour which includes Victoria peak on the Sunday. I don't suppose there is any chance that there are records of pupils attending the school during these two years. It would have been nice to find out my address on Prince Edward Road. As I don't remember. I was only 11 at that time. Only know I could see St Teresa's church from the roof. My sister said the Hospital was behind the apartments. I am so looking forward to coming back.

Nora Waski Class of 1974

This is a photo provided by Nora Waski. She would like to contact her Domestic Science teacher from 1973, Mrs. Lonsdale. Please contact the Community Development Office if you could provide any information.

Suzanne Copeland Finch Class of 1969

Suzanne Copeland studied at KGV School from 1964 to 69. Her father was working for the HK Telephone Co at the time. Her brother Robert Copeland started at KGV then moved to the Island School when it opened as it was nearer to where they lived in Bowen Road, Mid-Levels.

Suzanne now lives in Dorset England and is in touch with our alumni office over email correspondence, helping our officers improve their typing skills. Suzanne is excellent in shorthand & typing – she can still type 76 wpm without any errors. She says, “Typing skills are no longer taught, hence people getting RSI & wrist problems. I worked in a primary school & ran an afterschool club for children who wanted to learn to type correctly - the children were impressed that I did not look at the keys & how fast my fingers worked!” Suzanne also shares her fond memories of her time at KGV School with us and is looking forward to having an alumni reunion in the Dorset county area. We thank her very much for sharing her expertise with us!

Susan Gaulter Class of 1970

Susan Gaulter nee Wright was at KGV School from 1968 to 70 in the Crozier House. She has fond memories of KGV and her friends from school-Jamillah Tyebkhan and Charmaine Bartlett Susan now live near Bath in England. As for updates in 2015: – became a grandmother as of 10th June 2015 and had a Japanese translation of mine published in the historical novel of a local Japanese writer - but hardly groundbreaking news, and anyway I have not featured so far in the KGV news. A photo provided from Susan. (The girls are Jamillah Tyebkhan and Charmaine Bartlett.)

Jeremy Tromp Class of 1987

I started Bounce in Hong Kong because I wanted to do something that would make my new daughter proud. I grew up here and as a kid I loved trampolining but it was very hard to find places to jump in Hong Kong. So I wanted to make sure my daughter and all her new school friends would have somewhere to play!

David McKirdy Class of 1974

I run my own business repairing and maintaining vintage and classic cars. Since I left school I have been engaged in mechanical engineering, mostly to do with cars and motorcycles. I did work as a professional musician for a number of years and then came back to fixing cars when an opportunity to concentrate on Vintage cars arose.

I also do a bit of writing and I am a published poet and have represented HK at festivals and conventions in Macau, The Philippines, China, Egypt, Singapore, Vietnam, The U.S.A. and Colombia. I am Editor at Large for 'Rewind' a classic car magazine published in Singapore. I was until 2008 a director of The Hong Kong International Literary Festival, having worked on the organising team since the first event in 2000, currently I am on the organising and selection committee of the Baptist University of Hong Kong's International Writer's Workshop.

I left school with a few O-levels but finally got an honours degree in Western Arts and Humanities from the HK Open University, majoring in History and Philosophy.

Indra Shee Class of 1977

I am a doctor and qualified specialist in the field of Ophthalmology. My job description is that of a Medical Superintendent of a small hospital (my own) with 15 indoor beds and one OPD in which I double up as the Resident Medical Officer. I was born in Malaysia and spent my childhood from age 1 to 18 in HK. I studied at St Andrew's kindergarten on Nathan Road thence through Kowloon Junior School on Perth Street and finally KGV. In between I was at boarding schools - St Paul's School in Darjeeling, India and later in what was known as Haileybury Imperial Services College (one of the Old Public Schools in England). I finished my schooling from KGV. If you feel I could be of any service I am free today since our mega-reunion is not offering any activities during the day.

Austen Stark Class of 2011

I left KGV in the class of 2011. I was given the opportunity to shadow and learn from people in the industry before going to university in London at MET film school out of Ealing studios. I studied there on a year practical film making diploma with the initial idea of doing for the bachelor degree there. During my time I got an internship doing motion capture at Andy Serkis' company the Imaginarium. While I'm not credited as I was only an intern, I helped out while they worked on Godzilla and several other titles and video games.

As the 1 year diploma ended I had an opportunity arise to work doing post production here in Hong Kong. Knowing what the industry is like I jumped and worked on local Hong Kong films as well as a few German action movies.

In the wake of that, I started my own company called Wylde color, where I worked on the finishing of commercials, documentary, short and feature length films for companies such as the Wall Street journal, Shaw Studios and TVB.

After a year and a half of running Wylde color, I took the leap out of post production into directing and producing content, I spent 3 months employed by the New Zealand government filming a documentary about the district town of Wairoa.

Shortly after returning to Hong Kong I worked on several social and web campaigns that caught the attention of Sport Illustrated Asia, where I later worked as a videographer and editor for projects involving famous local athletes in Asia.

My current company studio box, which has 2 other KGV alumni students as well as 2 senior teachers who have worked with HBO Asia. The discovery channel, National Geographic, the BBC, Channel 4 and the list goes on!

We look to bridge the gap between IB and A level courses to university level and introductory level roles in companies. Our aim is to elevate students and provide them with the start to their Film and TV showreels for applications to university or creative companies that help demonstrate their abilities as a film maker and a creative.

Alan Sihoe Class of 1989

Hi! I'm Alan Sihoe, and I graduated from KGV in 1989.

Since KGV, I studied Medicine at Cambridge University and then trained to be a Cardiothoracic Surgeon for a number of years in England and Scotland. I returned to Hong Kong and worked first at the Prince of Wales Hospital and then the Queen Mary Hospital. I am currently a Clinical Associate Professor of the Department of Surgery at the University of Hong Kong, specializing in Minimally Invasive Thoracic Surgery. I treat major chest diseases such as lung cancer – which means you probably do not want to have to see me professionally! Besides Hong Kong, I also spend much of my time working in Mainland China: as the Chief of Thoracic Surgery at the University of Hong Kong Shenzhen Hospital, and as Guest Professor of Thoracic Surgery at the Tongji University Shanghai Pulmonary Hospital.

On top of my clinical career caring for patients, I teach and conduct research at HKU. I am also an Editor of a number of international medical journals, and a Board or committee member of quite a few international professional associations in surgery. I find myself teaching surgery, lecturing, or presenting medical research around the world almost every week, and I reckon I spend only 20% of all my weekends in Hong Kong nowadays. Although I love my work as an academic surgeon, you cannot imagine how much I miss my family when I travel. But looking back, I can see that my passion about education and training students and fellow surgeons really began back in KGV. The School gave me a great head start in life through education, and I suppose this is my way of giving back to eager learners today.

It sounds clichéd, but my KGV years were truly some of the happiest in my life. Often when I dream at night, I still picture myself enjoying that simpler life of yesteryear. Some of the best friends I will ever have were the friends I made in KGV. Many of us still meet up regularly after all these years. And if you are one of the friends I have not met in a while, I'd sure like to catch up with you now!

Reena Bhojwani Class of 2005

Since graduated from KGV, I went completed my Bachelor in Creative Arts (majoring in Creative Writing and minoring in Theatre Studies) at the University of Melbourne. After that, I have been (and still am) working at Elephant Community Press in Hong Kong, teaching creative writing to kids who share my passion (and some that don't realise yet that they have the gift of writing within them).

I've been an active member of the Hong Kong Writers Circle for over six years and have published 6 short stories with them. One of them received a review from the SCMP, saying "A few authors show bestseller potential. Reena Bhojwani reveals a yen for chatty chick lit with From Mount Olympus: Hidden in the Night"... Today, I have proudly self published (under the name Inspired Muse!) my first children's book: Surprising Mrs Rhubarbson. It's the first in a series called: Marble Mangosteen's Good Deed Collection. For more information, or to order a copy, please visit: www.inspiredmusehk.com and fill out the online order form.

Michael Ng Class of 2000

I graduated KGV in 2000, then studied engineering at Cornell (Class of 2003). Upon graduation, I worked in New York for about four years before coming back to HK in late 2006. Since returning to HK, I've been involved with Cornell's undergraduate admissions as an alumni interviewer and speaker at various events. My career has been in financial services (I'm currently working for Natixis, a French bank), though I have worked with a college counseling consultancy in between.

I'd be very interested in opportunities to come back and speak with existing KGVers' (especially Yr10 and above) after school restarts in fall.

Reunions

Class of 2006 Reunion

- Jennifer Tam, Class of 2006

On 19th March, 60 people gathered at the KGV lobby for a special occasion. It had been 10 years since we graduated from these halls and despite the time that has passed, many of us returned to the school with a heart full of distinct fond memories. We started the reunion with a tour of the campus, running our fingers along the familiar green marble of Peel Block, and marveling at the modern architecture of the drama and science buildings. We ducked into our favourite hangout spots and admired the current student achievements displayed in the hallways.

We finished the evening with a cocktail session at Leo's Cafe. Ed Wickins, Paul Letters and Ian Greenfield joined us for drinks and laughs. New photos were taken against a backdrop of old ones. We had alumni traveling from the US, UK, Singapore, Australia and the Philippines to be there that evening. All of us had a personal and special story to tell about our time here, and suddenly 10 years seemed like no time at all.

Special thanks and mention to Yasmeen, Clara and all the staff who helped us organize this reunion.

LSC Reunion - Jane Angwin and Audrey Jaouen

On Tuesday 23rd August a very special event took place in the Heritage Centre. Alumni from the Learning Support Center and parents gathered together as a reunion and in order to remember one of their contemporaries who passed away in 2012, Gloria Ng when she was in year 11. A portrait had been painted by LSC classmate Adrian Chan, who chose to paint a memorial portrait of Gloria as a major assignment in his final degree year at SCAD where he was studying Art. Adrian presented the portrait to the school. It was framed with a commemorative plaque and is now hung in the Heritage Center. Remembering Gloria was sad, yet there were many happy moments to recall about Gloria, being such a highly valued member of the LSC. We were delighted to share the event with Gloria's parents Mr and Mrs Ng and her sister Stephanie who still attends KGV in year 12. We were also able to share with the Alumni that thanks to a generous donation from Dr Wu, parent of Shawn Wu who left KGV last summer, we are able to award an LSC scholarship to one LSC student each year who has shown exceptional progress and performance, at speech night each year.

Audrey Jaouen, who was a classmate of Gloria wrote; "This event was for Gloria's memorial and brought together all of the Teachers and students who supported her over the years and I feel very sad that we missed her. She was a cheerful person. I have known Gloria since when I was a year seven and I remember that me and Gloria at Break and lunch time decided who will sit next to Catrin who was in a wheelchair. "

The Alumni were all engaged in exciting activities and it was wonderful for staff students and parents to meet up at such a memorable event.

Class of 1998

KGV Alumnus Calvin Lee Kwan class of 1998 is currently working for a leading company in Hong Kong. At our higher education fair, he shared an inspirational speech with our 200 Year12 students. He spoke about the journey to university and his experiences there, imparting some valuable knowledge upon our students. Calvin reminds our students to not fear failure- to test boundaries now and to learn from mistakes early. We express our sincere gratitude to Calvin for sharing his time with us.

Austen Stark
Class of 2011

Austen is the Director of Stark Raven Production. He is offering a project for our Year 9 Experience in media production. The objective is to encourage student's independence in project based learning; to develop creative, entrepreneurial minds and challenge students to take action, and enable real change.
